

CAMPUS ECU UPDATE

February 2020

Pierson's Perceptions

February saw many remarkable successes. ECU hosted its 101st Interscholastic Meet and students, teachers and administrators who attended are still talking about the fun they had while on campus.

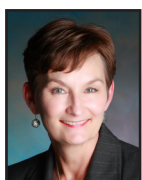

Governor Anoatubby provided an excellent overview of tribal gaming at the Lou Watkins Lecture. Community members are still remarking on the pride they have in the Chickasaw Nation and our Distinguished Alumnus.

The Black Alumni Association and Louise Young Diversity Lecture combined forces to bring a powerful speaker to campus. Cheryl Brown Henderson's message was heard by a large audience and I'm still receiving compliments on the event.

At that lecture, Dr. Donnie Nero was awarded the BAA Trailblazer Award. At a statewide meeting, people shared with me their delight in seeing Dr. Nero recognized and reported that he shares his love for ECU wherever he goes.

Students also had remarkable success. Social media has been alive with the stories of a student presenting at the state Capitol during Higher Ed Day, our amazing student-athletes receiving Great American Conference recognition, and business students taking first place in the State Council for Human Resource Management competition.

When folks in the public share their comments with me, know that all credit is given to each of you for making ECU a wonderful and remarkable place.

ECU BAA honors Nero with Trailblazer Award

The East Central University Black Alumni Association honored lifetime educator and ECU alum Dr. Donnie Nero with its prestigious Trailblazer Award as part of the program for the annual Louise Young Diversity Lecture on campus February 20.

A native of Spencer, Oklahoma, Nero graduated from Dunjee High School in 1967. He earned a bachelor's degree in Education from East Central University in 1971. Nero earned his master's degree in Education Administration in 1977 and his doctorate in Occupational and Adult Education in 1993, both from Oklahoma State University.

Nero progressed through the ranks at Tulsa Community College to become Provost of the TCC Southeast Campus. He then achieved the presidency of Connors State College in 2000, becoming the first African American to lead a predominantly non-black college or university in the state of Oklahoma. Under his leadership, Connors experienced record student enrollment and campus renovation. He retired from the presidency in 2011.

In 2002, ECU named Nero a Distinguished Alumnus.

Massey elected nursing board president

East Central University Nursing instructor Liz Massey has been elected president of the Oklahoma Board of Nursing. Massey, MSN, NPD-BC, NEA-BC, NE-BC, RN, served as vice president for the previous two years. She was appointed to the board in July 2016 by Governor Mary Fallin and serves as a representative member on the Education IDP Committee and a member of the Criminal History Task Force Committee. Massey graduated from ECU in 2004 and currently serves as an instructor in the ECU Nursing program.

LIZ MASSEY

She obtained a Master's of Science degree in Nursing Education in 2012 from the University of Oklahoma. She anticipates completing a Doctorate of Nursing Practice degree from Chamberlain University in April 2020.

ECU student speaks at state Capitol

An East Central University student recently spoke to an audience gathered at the 2020 Higher Education Day at the state Capitol in Oklahoma City. Ruth Herman of Waxahachie, Texas, accompanied Dr. Christine Pappas, ECU Political Science professor, to the annual event on February 11.

Herman is studying Political Science and Counseling with an emphasis on Human Services for the Deaf. She will graduate from ECU in 2021 and plans to pursue work in advocacy. "It was an amazing opportunity," Herman said. "I hope that my participation helped make an impact for the future of Oklahoma higher education." Pictured, from left, are Dr. Pappas, Herman, Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education Chancellor Glen D. Johnson and OSRHE Regent Ann Holloway.

Brown Henderson delivers powerful diversity lecture

Cheryl Brown Henderson, founder of the Brown Foundation and daughter of the man who led a fight for racial equality in the public school system, delivered East Central University's Louise Young Diversity Lecture on February 20 in the Ataloo Theatre of the Hallie Brown Ford Fine Arts Center.

ECU's Black Alumni Association co-sponsored the event with Louise Young. Henderson is one of three daughters of the late Rev. Oliver L. Brown, who in the fall of 1950 – along with 12 other parents in Topeka, Kansas, led by attorneys for the NAACP – filed suit on behalf of their children against the local Board of Education. Their case joined with cases from Delaware, South Carolina, Virginia and Washington, D.C. on appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. On May 17, 1954, came the landmark decision known as Brown v. Board of Education.

Henderson's lecture, subtitled "The Legacy Continues," was met with appreciation and enthusiasm by the large crowd.

Happy 250th, Beethoven!

East Central University's School of Fine Arts presented a concert celebrating the 250th anniversary of the birth of Ludwig van Beethoven (1770-1827) on February 23. As part of the festivities, ECU Showtime performed "Beethoven's Day" from the 1999 Broadway musical, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown."

ECU, Brazil's PUCPR form partnership

Note: In the spirit of the new partnership, this is the translated press release distributed by PUCPR.

The PUCPR School of Business, as of this year, has another partner for dual degrees in the areas of entrepreneurship and business: East Central University (ECU), an Oklahoma institution (USA).

The partnership is the result of an agreement for international cooperation established by universities during the visit of professor Bruno Fernandes, dean of the School of Business at PUCPR, to East Central University, at the end of January.

In the international programs of PUCPR, the double degree consists of taking part of the undergraduate course at the Brazilian university and at least one year at the partner institution abroad, which re-sults in a graduate or master's degree at the foreign university.

"With this type of experience, the student has the opportunity not only to learn concepts and tools in the business area, but, above all, to live an international environment, improving new languages, creating a network and immersing in another culture," explains professor Fernandes. Also according to him, with a diploma of this modality, the student is more likely to achieve an international career, whether working in Brazil or abroad.

In addition to the double degree, the agreement between PUCPR and East Central University also includes the arrival of American students in Curitiba for an International Studies program. It includes lectures and activities with students and professors from PUCPR and visits to companies in the capital of Paraná.

Professors Wendell Godwin, dean of the ECU Business School, and Stacey Bolin, director of the American university's Center for Entrepreneurship, had already visited PUCPR, in early December, to get to know the institution before formalizing the partnership.

ECU Accounting grads honored

When it comes to accounting, count on East Central University.

The 2020 Trailblazers from ECU are Meredith Murphy, CPA, senior vice president and operational risk officer with Vision Bank; and Mason Groves, CPA, director of accounting with People's Electric Cooperative. Murphy graduated from ECU in 2004 and Groves in 2016.

The 2020 Path Finder with an ECU connection is Wes Brantley, CPA, a consultant to the Chickasaw Nation. He graduated from ECU in 1962.

The OSCPA will recognize the award winners at its 102nd annual meeting on June 5 in Norman, Oklahoma.

Nero

In 2010, the ECU Educators Hall of Fame inducted him, along with fellow alum Jimmy Scales, making them the first African Americans to receive that honor. Also in 2010, Nero founded the Oklahoma African American Educators Hall of Fame Inc., and currently serves as its president.

In 2016, Nero completed two terms as chair of the Office of Juvenile Affairs. He is a founder of the Oklahoma Legal Issues Conference, a graduate of Leadership Tulsa Class XVIII, and Oklahoma state coordinator of the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators. He is also a member of the Oklahoma Global Education Consortium.

The ECU Black Alumni Association presented Nero with the Trailblazer Award preceding the 2020 Louise Young Diversity Lecture that featured Cheryl Brown Henderson, whose father was instrumental in the 1954 landmark Supreme Court decision Brown v. Board of Education. He is the second person to receive the Trailblazer Award. The inaugural winner, Dr. Shirley Mixon, introduced Nero at the lecture.

Grad gives back to ECU club

Wyatt Jones of Holdenville – a soldier now stationed at Fort Hood, Texas – went out of his way recently to return to Ada so he could visit his professors and to buy Russian chocolates from his former club. He also donated $100 to the Russian Club through the ECU Foundation.

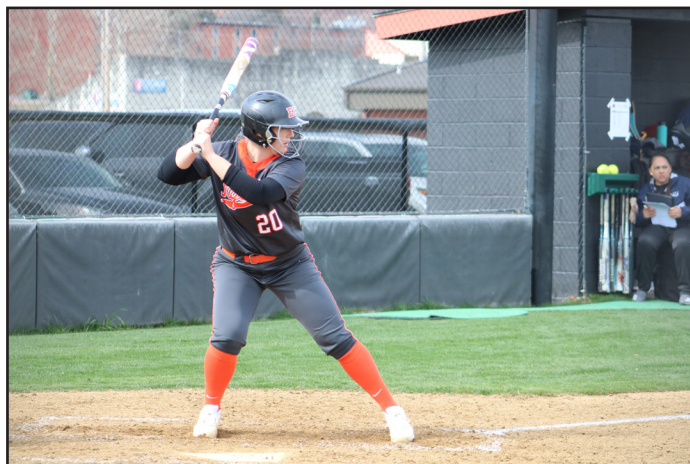

The chocolate sale is the Russian Club's traditional fundraiser, with proceeds being equally divided among club members to help with travel and cultural activities expenses.

Jones earned a Cartography degree from ECU in 2017, but minored in Russian. He made two academic trips to Russia through the Study Abroad program, the first in 2015 and again the following year. The program provided him with valuable cultural experience as subsequent military trips to Poland and Bulgaria were made easier because of his previous travels to that part of the world.

Spring sports now in full swing!

As March arrives, ECU Tiger softball and baseball are in full swing. Tiger track and field athletes are also starting to compete. At left, sophomore catcher Emma Barr of Flower Mound, Texas, prepares to take a cut at an oncoming pitch against Newman University. The Tigers took the game 7-0. At right, junior right hander Davis Rogers of Bokchito delivers a pitch to a Southwestern State University batter. Rogers is a transfer from Carl Albert State College. The teams split a double header. To keep up with the latest in the fast-moving world of ECU Tiger sports, visit the Athletics website at www.ecutigers.com.

Roary Tiger awards an unidentified area high school student a medal for her performance at ECU's 101st Interscholastic Meet on February 11. Several hundred competitors descended on campus for the event and were treated with fun activities and tours between academic contests.

Allison Bush of Sapulpa and her fellow cast mates perform "The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee" that ran February 13-15 in the beautiful Ataloe Theatre inside the Hallie Brown Ford Fine Arts Center.

ECU students aren't the only ones having fun on campus. The Pontotoc County Drug-Free Coalition held its fifth annual gala, disguised as an 80's prom murder mystery, in the Chickasaw Business & Conference Center on February 7.

Whitehead Elementary School Superintendent and Principal Lou Ann Wood answers questions during the Spring 2020 Education Fair in the ECU Memorial Student Union February 14. The career fair is an excellent networking opportunity for ECU Education majors and alumni.

Current ECU student teachers recently enrolled in a seminar focusing on a variety of particular concerns for any first-year teacher. Dr. David Thornton, ECU Education instructor, organized and hosted the seminar on campus. In this photo, Ada City Schools Superintendent Mike Anderson addresses the seminar attendees.

A no-show gala? Yes! To celebrate its 50th birthday in February 2020, the ECU Foundation sent out these fancy invitations for an "event" that wasn't. The novel campaign invited alumni and other community supporters of the University to make contributions from the comfort of their homes rather than carve time out of their busy schedules to attend an in-person gala. Black tie optional, indeed!
