

Frequently Asked Questions about the East Central University Honors Program

1. What does it take to qualify to apply for the Honors Program?

High school applicants must have a 3.5 high school grade point average and either: a) an ACT composite score of 24 or higher or b) 12 college credit hours with a 3.5 college grade point average.

Transfer students and continuing students at ECU must have 3.3 grade point average and recommendations from 2 faculty members.

2. How do I apply?

Go to ecok.edu/honorsapp.

3. When are applications due?

We take applications until all class seats are taken and all scholarships distributed. We recommend that high-school students apply by the end of November of their senior year and attend an Honors Early Acceptance group interview in December.

3. What does it take to stay in the Honors Program?

Maintain a cumulative 3.3 GPA, make steady progress toward fulfilling your Honors requirements each semester, and fulfill community service hour requirements (currently four hours per semester).

4. What is the difference between University Honors and Departmental Honors?

Departmental Honors is designed for students who start the Honors Program during their junior year. University Honors is designed for students who start the Honors program during their first-year in college, but continuing and transfer students can also do University Honors if it fits their course plan.

5. What does it take to graduate with University Honors?

You must complete seven challenges to graduate with University Honors:

- 4 Honors Seminars (these seminars meet general education distribution requirements)
- 2 semesters of upper division research or creative projects (two Honors projects or a single, two-semester Honors thesis)
- 1 off-campus engagement experience (internship, study abroad, Oklahoma Scholar Leaders Enrichment Program, etc.)

It is possible to complete all of these challenges in three years.

6. What does it take to graduate with Departmental Honors?

You must complete three challenge to graduate with Departmental Honors:

- 2 semesters of upper division research or creative projects (two Honors projects or a single, two-semester Honors thesis)
- And either 1 Honors Seminar or 1 off-campus engagement experience (see description above)

It is possible to complete all of these challenges in one year.

7. Are Honors seminars much more difficult than regular General Education courses?

We don't tell Honors instructors to make the courses more difficult; we tell them to make the courses discussion-based. Because these courses usually admit no more than fifteen students, it is easier to make the courses more interactive and engaging. Students in Honors seminars usually find that their grades are about the same, and often higher, than those they get in traditional courses.

8. Is there added expense?

First-year students pay a one-time $70 fee to support Honors Student Association activities. Continuing and Transfer students pay a one-time $50 fee.

9. Can I be in the Honors Program while I'm an athlete/a cheerleader/ a band member or while I have a part-time job?

Yes. Several current Honors students and recent graduates have been varsity athletes, cheerleaders, members of the band and choir, and leaders of student government and Greek organizations. Many also hold down part-time jobs, and some complete Honors requirements while raising a family.

10. What if I'm not certain I can handle it?

Try it for a semester. If it's not for you, we can change your coding, and you can continue your studies at ECU as a traditional student without delaying your progress towards graduation.

11. Is special scholarship money available especially for Honors students?

Yes. The Honors Program expects to offer as many as thirty incoming first-year applicants four-year scholarships worth $20,000 ($1750 per semester as a tuition-fee waiver and $750 per semester as an ECU housing-fee waiver for up to 8 semesters). Applicants must be Oklahoma residents. First-year applicants who are out-of-state residents are eligible for an in-state tuition waivers.

12. Is scholarship money available to students who make good progress toward completing Honors Program requirements during their first three years on the Program?

Yes. In recent years, awards of $250-$500 have been granted to students who start their last year at ECU having made the most significant progress towards completing their Honors graduation requirements. This scholarship money is available to all students in the Honors Program, not just Oklahoma residents or those who started the program their first semester on campus.

13. Is entrance to the Honors Program limited to recipients of Honors tuition waivers?

No. For most of our history at ECU, the Honors Program has been comprised entirely of students who chose Honors for its intrinsic benefits, and we expect this will continue to be the case.

14. What are the top things students in the Program value about Honors?

The people, the friends, the community, and the discussion-based classes.
